As a teacher, headteacher, school inspector and educational consultant, I have seen many programmes come and go on the curriculum. While innovative and stimulating teaching packages have equipped children to progress in their academic studies, there have been few that reach the core of the child: their emotional intelligence, equipping them to deal with their daily and future lives.

Mrs Chrysler has developed such a unique programme and the children who are fortunate to be the recipients of it have already shown rapid developments in their emotional growth. The Noam Ziv Treasure Hunt programme should be a fundamental part of the school curriculum as its proven track record shows how it has had a very positive effect on the lives not just of children but also of teachers and indeed parents.

We are in a pivotal era of chinuch and we now have an opportunity to grasp this explosion of joy and potential. I have no doubt that we shall reap the fruits of this programme in our children of the future, who will consider themselves lucky to have been part of it. I wish Mrs Chrysler and her team much Hatzlocha.
